John Saunders' Report on Round 2

It is not often that one can find quite such an obvious theme for a round; but today proved to be a superb round for the women players. Three women are amongst the eight leaders on 2/2: in no particular order, Zoltan Gyimesi (Hungary), Antoaneta Stefanova (Bulgaria), Mohamad Al Modiahki (Qatar), Pia Cramling (Sweden), Mohamad Al Sayed (Qatar), Eric Schiller (USA), Alan Dunn (NZ) and Jessie Gilbert (England).

Of course, tournament positions mean at such an early stage of an event but the manner of the three women's success was emphatic. Bologan chose a very messy opening against Pia Cramling, involving a massed advance of pawns. Eventually the problem centred round Cramling's advanced d-pawn and doubled rooks on the e-file, and it proved to be relatively easy to parry White's counter-chances. It looks like Bologan may have missed one fleeting chance of salvation in the complications but he was undone by the beautiful sacrificial deflection 49...Bc5+!

Volkov-Stefanova was an interesting game, with White having two bishops against the women's world champion's two knights. That might sound like an endgame advantage, but this was still a middlegame. In chess, context is everything and basic principles often prove to be false friends in an atypical position. The two bishops didn't look too badly placed, but the two knights managed to weave a deadly net around them, to the point where Volkov blundered a lost a piece. Needless to say, one bishop is certainly no match for two knights.

The third significant victory by a woman against a higher-rated player (perhaps we can call it a 'Davina versus Goliath' victory) was Jessie Gilbert against the Indian IM Sundararajan Kidambi. Note that all three were achieved with the Black pieces. Another curiosity was that Jessie Gilbert's knights were as instrumental in her success as those of the women's world champion mentioned in the last paragraph. Her 19...Nxb2 sacrifice is quite startling, and incidentally comes as a surprise to my German cyber-dachshund, Fritz. However it definitely packs a punch and Kidambi's king was left perilously exposed. White managed to get rid of the two knights and consolidate his position to some extent, but then fell into a fiendish mating net.

Alan Dunn, from New Zealand, is currently the most successful player at the congress, with a score of 4/4. How so? He is playing in the Challengers* in the mornings, where he currently has 2/2, and he has also scored 2/2 in the Masters. His reward for this prodigious start is a pairing with Ian Jamieson on Wednesday morning followed by a close encounter with Alexei Shirov in the afternoon. You should also note that one of our arbiting team has scored 2/2 in the Masters. You've heard of 'Driller Killer', but 'Filler Schiller' is equally deadly. Tomorrow he passes the baton to David Sedgwick, who will try to maintain the honour of the arbiting/organisational team. At this rate 'Filler' may yet pick up first prize.

* Note: we haven't forgotten about the Challengers event as regards the bulletin. We will be producing a separate bulletin for the Challengers tournament, with all the games, very soon.

Miscellaneous Information

TRIP TO MOROCCO - On Friday 27 January there is a day trip to Tetouan and Tangier. The price is £47.00 (adult) or £37.00 (child), to include coach transfers to and from the port in Spain, lunch, return ferry. The trip includes a city tour of Tetouan, camels, visit to the market, transfer to (and tour of) Tangier. If you want to go you need to put your name on the list on the tournament noticeboard, or speak to Judy Whurr.

T-SHIRTS - can competitors please remember to collect their free t-shirts from one of the boxes at the back of the hall after their games.

WEBSITE - The website for the tournament is www.gibraltarchesscongress.com run by Bill O'Rourke, and there is also some coverage on the British Chess Magazine website, www.bcmchess.co.uk

Any items for the website and/or bulletin please give to Bill

If you require particular photographs for your organisation / journal, please let us know and we will try our best to get a digital photograph and to e-mail it off for you.
