During the first two rounds the heavyweight Grandmasters must have felt that their high ratings were not being given the respect that it was due. It seemed an emergency meeting was called and the chairman announced that in round three the "Empire" must restore the normal order in a merciless way. On the first twenty boards only 4 draws were recorded and it was not until board 31 that a lower rated player was able to claim a victory classified as an upset!

Former World Championship challenger Grandmaster Nigel Short must have felt this and not wanting to be left out continued to grind Chanda Sandipan to at least claim the longest game of the tournament so far, finishing at 10:15 after more than 7 hours play. The Indian Grandmaster had to defend the infamous "rook versus rook and bishop" ending where one slip is usually fatal. At move 124 he managed to claim a draw by threefold repetition to stop the torture.

World champion Antoaneta Stefanova must have felt that she would continue her giant killing ways as she continued to push Armenian grandmaster Vladimir Akopian but an impetuous pawn thrust 37.h4 allowed him to take over the initiative which he never relinquished. Perhaps Vladimir wanted to show that he too had reached the final of the World Championship in his younger days. Although, when talking about playing in matches for the world championship, it is the name of Victor Korchnoi that continues to reappear. Today Victor showed that age is still not a barrier for him as he took apart Mohammad Tissir's Kings Indian defence. I can shut my eyes and imagine Victor showing his famous disapproval for this opening, wondering why people even dared to play it against him.

Mihail Kobalia beat Peter Wells in a long ending where the Englishman was forced into rook versus rook versus a-h pawns. Sometimes this ending can be salvaged but this version had the Russian Grandmasters pieces in too far forward positions.

Bulgarian Grandmaster was another who would not take "no" for an answer as he managed to win a superior rook ending versus ex women's world Champion Zhu Chen. This was one of a series of a number of games today where the Grandmasters played without risk, just pushing the position to its limits and waiting for the errors to appear not caring how long it would take. The technical superiority of experienced players such as Gurevich, Georgiev and Spraggett was apparent.

It is well known that when you play white versus Scottish grandmaster Colin McNab you will spend your preparation time looking at some variation of the Modern defence. Israeli Grandmaster Emil Sutovsky had the task of breaking through. For years the Scot has successfully upheld this opening. Sutovsky has the reputation of a fearless attacker and he did not disappoint today. Soon the game was a tactical display of fireworks where various pieces were placed en prise. In the end the Scot made the final mistake with 30...Ne8 and allowed the killer 31 Qg4. A game to play through and enjoy. People watching online may have seen Emil's dazzling commentary on this game online. He was particularly proud of the move 28.Kc1, as opposed to 28.Kc2 (which allows Black to get in Qd4 at some point, with a good chance of perpetual check).

On the white side of a Sicilian Kan Englishman Adam Ashton missed a difficult winning chance against Grandmaster Evgenij Agrest with 39.Rd7 Nc5 40.Rc7 when 40...Ne6 is answered by the stunning 41.Nb4!! Nxc7 42.Nxa6 Nxa6 43.b7 and wins. As played, he fell into a mating net.

In round 5 Alexei Shirov has fought his way back to board one and, after visiting the middle of the tournament hall, he will want his 2 metre frame to stay in the comfort of the individual boards! The search for an outright leader continues but the big name clashes have begun, leaving the large internet audience that switches in everyday continuing to grow.

Miscellaneous Information

WEBSITE - The website for the tournament is www.gibraltarchesscongress.com (run by Bill O'Rourke) and there is also some coverage on the British Chess Magazine website, www.bcmchess.co.uk) courtesy of John Saunders.

The web site traffic is increasing exponentially, which obviously the sponsors are delighted with! Please contact all your colleagues / journals / national associations with the web address.

Gib telecom have laid an optical fibre line before the congress, but yesterday proved tricky for their server. This is being resolved and should be Ok from here on in.

We have added several new functions to the website:

1/ Viewers can now either view just the electronic games, just the audio commentary from Stuart Conquest, just the webcam or any mixture of all three. Just click on live games from the front page of the web site and all the options will appear.

2/ A MSN messenger link has been added to the audio commentary :

gibraltarchess@hotmail.com

Anybody from anywhere in the world can now interact with the live commentary by Stuart, the audience and other grandmasters as they finish their games and come into the commentary room. Please pass this on to your chess colleagues!

3/ An e-mail address is provided on the site where anybody can request photographs for their clubs, associations or journals, and Bill will try to take the photos and e-mail them at high definition:
